Four more British paracanoe wins

Paris Regatta

The first gold medals of the World Cup in Paris were decided with world champions Emma Wiggs, Curtis McGrath and Hope Gordon maintaining the form which took them to the top of the podium in Duisburg less than a week earlier.

Competitors battled gusty wind on the course where sprint and paracanoe races will be held during the Paris Olympic and Paralympic Games.

Great Britain's Emma Wiggs continued to dominate the women's VL2, where she had five consecutive world titles to go with the Paralympic gold from Tokyo. On Wednesday she added another World Cup gold to the collection.

'That was wavy and windy; it was pretty brutal and I'm hoping it's not going to be like that if I am lucky enough to be here next year,' Wiggs said.

'It's an amazing feeling. I think the venue has great potential; hopefully they'll get some more stands up and make it a bit more sheltered but I think they will be able to put on a great Games from what I've seen so far.'

Australia's Susan Seipel took the silver and Canada's Brianna Hennessy the bronze.

Like Wiggs, Australia's Curtis McGrath had dominated his KL2 class, winning two Paralympic and five world titles.

McGrath was this week officially named as a co-captain of the Australian Paralympic team for Paris and celebrated with gold on Wednesday.

'It's obviously nice to be here and experiencing the real thing but it is a little bit difficult; there's quite a bit of chop out there but it's nice to get a hit out against some of the world's best,' McGrath said.

'You have to prepare for all scenarios and it can always get worse so having the opportunity to race here with conditions like this and, to see it at its worst and maybe at its best as well, I think on a good day it's going to be a phenomenal course.'

New Zealand's Scott Martlew finished second and Austria's Markus Swoboda took third.

Great Britain's Hope Gordon won her first paracanoe world title in the women's VL3 at the weekend and followed up with a win in Paris on Wednesday.

'It was really tough out there; it was really bumpy but I think I'm definitely progressing in terms of just controlling the boat,' Gordon said.

'I've had the brute force for a while but the technical bit has taken a while to come but I think it's a step in the right direction.'

Team mate Charlotte Henshaw took silver and Brazil's Mari Santilli the bronze.

The Italian C2 pairing of Carlo Tacchini and Gabriele Casadei showed an early liking for the Olympic course with a win in their 500 metre canoe heat.

'It's a great course, a little bit windy on the right side but the facilities are great; it's a very good environment so let's hope to be here next year too,' Tacchini said. 'We've worked hard during the whole season to be here so we're proud of what we have achieved. We're not completely satisfied about our seventh place at the worlds but, still, we made it and we got the quotas for our country.'
